Sergt. Rohrback was one of the members of the original force of provost guards stationed in Chattanooga under the command of Maj. Kern. During the Mexican trouble he served under that officer as a provost guard in Douglass, Ariz., and distinguished himself in many daring raids on bands transporting morphine and oplum from Mexico into the United States. He used many disguises while working in that capacity and often went for days without reporting to his commander in working up cases. Some of the ruses used by him were almost uncanny in their cleverness, and Maj. Kern considered him one of his best men. Sergt. Rohrback did not know the meaning or th efeeling of fear.

RIPPLING RHYMES

Yankee Pep.

The war was old and dreary, it ceased to make a hit; the struggling hosts were weary of blood and mud and grit; then came the Yankee fighters (laughed at by German writers as brash and untrained blighters) to speed things up a bit. The kaiser would not credit the tale that yanks could scrap; he cooked up bunk and fed it to every German chap; because we were not willing to spend our lifetime drilling, we'd be no spend our lifetime drilling, we have map. The war was stale and dragging, the armies bady mired; the generals were sagging, the soldiers sick and tired; then came the Ytnkees trooping, a-whistling and kerwhooping, to spur the spirts drooping, with enargy all-fired. And now, behold the wonder; the tired out allies rose, and like a streak of thunder went zipping through the foes; they sent the Bulgar chasing, the Turk they gave a lacing, and started Fritzie racing until he tore his clothes. The Yanks are bilthe and skittish, in camp or in the trench; "They're wonders," says the French; the allies all are lying the roses where they're straying; but what the kaiser's saying possess sulphur's stench.

Mr. Williamson Says He Did Not De-preciate Judge Conner's Aid. Dr. L. C. Williamson, of East Lake, says he has been misquoted in the morning paper concerning the health situation in that suburb. He wanted it known that the work of Judge Sam Conner and helpers is appreciated, and that the furnishing of fuel, medicine and food has been a great help. He did think, however, that there should be a more systematic manner of handling the situation so far as medical help and nurses are concerned. He explained that where a doctor had a case that it was best for him to han-

The work, which is in the hands of the Chickamauga Quarry and Construction company, has been considerably hampered by several things, among which have been the prevailing shortage of labor and the delay occasioned by the laying of railroad tracks along the aying of railroad tracks along the horoughfare.

SCANT INTEREST IN GERMANY'S NEW ROLE

PRESIDENT HAS RENDERED HIS DECISION.

Imperial Empire May Be Mistaken in Belief That Submarine Problem Is Settled.

(John Edwin Nevin.) Washington, Oct. 21.—(I. N. S.)— The national capital displayed scant interest today on the German note. The various cabled reports of what it might be expected to contain, the evi dent intent on the part of Berlin to shroud its whereabouts with mystery, shroud its whereabouts with mystery, gave no concern to officials.

At the Swiss legation the charge-de-affaires, Frederick Oederlin, said early today that he was entirely without word concerning it and had no received it. The state department had no advices. The entente department officials had cables indicating simply that the rest was on the way here. that the note was on the way here. The fate of the document is certain. yet, that he felt positive that the Chattanooga committee or organization would be entitled to the honor of naming one of the large battleships. This honor was promised to the city in Tennessee securing the largest number of individual subscriptions to the fourth liberty loan issue.

The report turned into Mr. Patten's office by divisions is as follows:

The position of the United States has been set forth in his decision. The decision has the endorsement of the allies. Nothing but complete compliance with the conditions so set forth will permit additional steps by the allies. Nothing but complete com-pliance with the conditions so set forth will permit additional steps by the United States. Whether there will be any reply at all to a new German note that "begs the question" was a matter that the president would simply reply Most officials, and the entire entente representation here were hopeful that that resident would simply reply and the control of the that president would simply reply as he as he did to the Austrian note. But no one professed to be able to speak no one professed to be able to speak for the president.

Likely to Be Mistaken.

If Germany believes that by ordering her submarines to return to their bases she will solve the submarfne question which drew the United States into the present war, she is likely to be very much mistaken. The subma-rine question will not be settled, offirine question will not be settled cials said, until guarantees are furnished that these weapons of warfare shall no longer be used in violation of international law. Incidentally officials called attention to the fact that cials called attention to the fact that last week, while the submarine bases in Ostend and Zeebrugge were in operation, the German tones were all against modifying submarine activities. Since then the allies have control of the Belgian coast. New German submarines can operate only through the very dangerous North sea or via the Skaggrack, equally hazard. or via the Skagerrack, equally hazard-ous, the Germans are willing to recall their underwater assassins. Justification of Murder.

Incidentally a defense of her methods and a justification of the murder by torpedo and submarine shell fire of women and children, such as some advices indicate Germany intends, is certain to around the more hiller. certain to arouse even more bitter re-sentment against the present German government. The same feeling will follow any declaration by Germany follow any declaration by derimaly protesting against interference with her international affairs.

On the whole it did not appear today that there was the slightest chance of that there was the slightest chance of Germany raising any question in her new note that will gain her anything at all. The president has already washed his hands of the Hapsburgs by referring the Austrian situation to the Czecho-Slovaks.
